Terracotta Warriors

The Terracotta Warriors is a part of the Qin emperor's huge tomb complex. It is a collection of terracotta sculptures depicting the armies of Qin Shi Huang, the first Emperor of China.

Xi'an Bell Tower

The Bell Tower of Xi'an, built in 1384 during the early Ming Dynasty, is a symbol of Xi'an and one of the grandest of its kind in China.

The Ancient Culture of Xi'an

With the makeup and hair of the prosperous Tang Dynasty, the actress makes contemporary people touch and integrate into history. She with the tumbler likes a flying fairy from the mural. It's like breaking the boundaries of time and taking you back to the Tang Dynasty 10000 years ago, hand in hand with history.

Big Wild Goose Pagoda

The Big Wild Goose Pagoda was built in 652 during the Tang Dynasty, which originally had five stories. Now this well-preserved holy place for Buddhist is the symbol of Xi'an.
